yearbook published by the students of Cardinal Hayes High School. The time and labor expended in this enterprise can be justified only by the worthiness of its end: the fostering of a spirit of fortitude, of self-sacrifice, of charity, of perseverance, in the days which lie ahead—whether we are at home or in foreign lands, on the field of battle or a mission of peace—to carry on the tradition and the spirit of Cardinal Hayes, with love and devotion to God and country.

NEW YORK

his eminence

PATRICK CARDINAL HAYES

patron of our school

CARDINAL HAYES was without doubt one of the most prominent Americans of our century. His ardent patriotism and deep wisdom made him a national figure, and, what is more, an American in the finest sense of the word. His love for America is characterized in many of his expressions. "There is nothing like it anywhere. The land itself is a benediction." "America is a land that God has blessed beyond other lands."

We, the students of Hayes, proudly bear the name of this "Good Shepherd." His spirit hovers above the edifice constructed in his honor. This majestic monument stands as a permanent memorial to the depth of his wisdom, the sanctity of his life, and the multitude of his good works.

Truly have his life and his labors contributed an unprecedented prestige and strength to the cause of Catholicism in this our beloved land. Under his leadership the Archdiocese of New York and its clergy reached heights never before attained.

By the inspiration and direction of this august personage, solace and comfort came to thousands of poor unfortunates. Wherever misery, disaster, or tragedy reared its ugly head, there was Patrick Cardinal Hayes ever prepared to combat it with every resource available. His love for the poor earned for him the title, "The Cardinal of Charity." He was indeed a prince, rendering faithful service at the court of his heavenly king. And he has left to the Catholics of New York an example of priestly kindness and Christlike charity never to be forgotten.

If the future bring moments of discouragement, and it would seem now that such dark moments are inevitable, hope will be restored if we remember and repeat the prayer contained in the oft-quoted words of the late Cardinal: "In my heart I make a fervent prayer that God might bless and prosper America and keep her faithful to her highest ideals of charity and justice."

As Patrick Cardinal Hayes lived to bring others closer to Christ, so shall we, inspired by his example and educated in his name, strive to further the advance of Christ's Kingdom by adhering to the Hayes ideal of service "for God and Country."

FRANCIS J. SPELLMAN

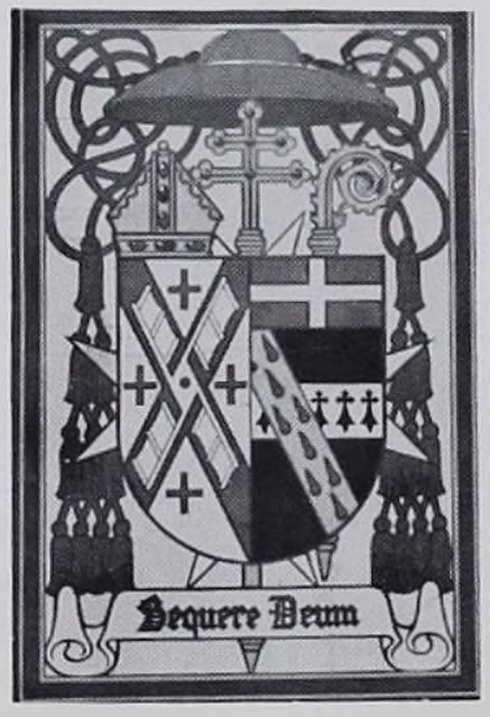
archbishop of New York

THE rapid growth of the Archdiocese of New York, from a struggling mission field to a great center of Catholic activity, has been due in no small part to her intelligent, saintly, forceful leaders—the bishops, archbishops, and cardinals appointed by Rome to guide and direct our development. New York's problems have been many and distinctive, but she has always been blessed with a leader capable of solving them.

When it was necessary to support principle by uncompromising strength, the militant Archbishop Hughes provided the leadership. When economic depression brought the misery of abject poverty to so many, the "Cardinal of Charities" was there to muster all the resources of the archdiocese in the attempt to mitigate the sufferings of the poor. And, in the present day, when so many false prophets seek to lead our youth astray, we have in Archbishop Spellman a shepherd who has recognized the important role of Catholic education in combating the foe, and whose genius has already provided for thousands of Catholic boys and girls a new opportunity to receive such an education.

The planning, building, and staffing of Cardinal Hayes High School, our Alma Mater, and the success that has attended its first two years, are eloquent testimonials to the wisdom and foresight of His Excellency. No one who has seen the fruits of this new tree of knowledge which he has planted can help but breathe a prayer of gratitude to Almighty God for having given us a shepherd so insistent on the best possible Catholic training for all the children entrusted to his care.

When the history of the Archdiocese of New York of our time has been completed, we feel that our Archbishop will stand out prominently among the greatest of Catholic Educators; and we shall be even more grateful, even more proud, that we were among the first fruits of his labor in this vineyard.



Francis J Spellman.

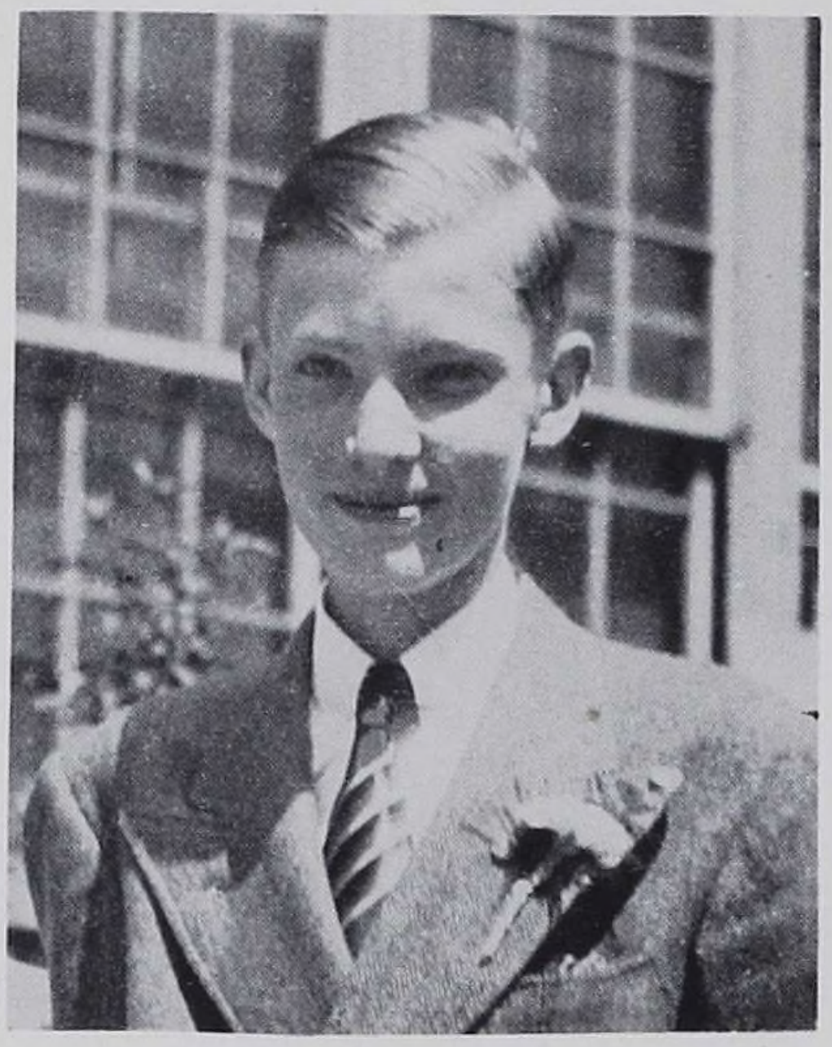
In Memoriam



JOHN TULLY

Member of the class of 1943 . . . Active on Original "Cardinal's Calendar" Staff . . . Member of Father Higgins' Debating Society.

SOME phenomena can never be described in mere words; some feelings transcend expression. Among these latter are our feelings towards John Tully.

We knew he was none too strong, that he suffered from an affliction that might well have broken the spirit of a lesser man. Yet his death came as a shock. Perhaps we took it for granted that his indomitable courage would always triumph—that he would continue to return from his bouts with death and make up by diligent effort work that ordinary men might have accounted wholly lost.

To his family, our sincere sympathy. For him, our prayers, and our gratitude for the inspiration we receive from the memory of his gentle, manly character.

AIR TRAINING CORPS

Members of A.T.C. as they were ready to embark on their trip to Canada to spend a few weeks in training with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

REALIZING the importance of pre-induction training for the attainment of final victory, Cardinal Hayes High School has formed the Air Training Corps. The purpose of this organization is to instruct the young men in those subjects that will prepare them for future military life.

Under the able supervision of Brother Norbert, C. F. X., once a student at West Point, this group has received no little prominence. What was perhaps their highest tribute came as an invitation from the Royal Canadian Air Force to visit Canada in September, 1942. As guests of the R. C. A. F., our cadets not only enjoyed the hospitality of their hosts, but they were given a very thorough training in Canadian drill and aviation technique. On their return to school, they enlivened one of our first assemblies recounting their unforgettable experiences among our neighbors to the north.

Other occasions—their visits to Mitchell Field and Fort Slocum, and their appearance in public parades—further proved how well the Cardinal Hayes Air Training Corps is meeting the challenge of the present conflict. The lads of our corps have cheerfully sacrificed time and pleasure in their determination to develop all the skills their country soon will demand of them; they deserve great credit too for their efforts to meet the expenses incurred for uniforms and other necessary equipment. Cardinal Hayes High School is proud of them; and we feel certain that their success will not end here, but will be carried over into the various branches of the armed forces of the United States. May God go with them; may He bring them back safe and victorious.

AIR TRAINING CORPS

A.T.C. officers confer with Brother Norbert.

THE present commanding officers of the A.T.C. did not reach their high position by accident. Until recently, the highest rank was that of captain, held by the leaders of the nine squadrons into which the wing is divided. Every squadron is composed of two flights, each led by a lieutenant. On April 15 of this year, before two high ranking United States Army officers from Fort Slocum, every captain led his squadron in a half-hour's drill. As a result of this review, Robert Marino was appointed colonel, John Hagan, lieutenant colonel, and Joseph Beaney and Clifford Fogarty, majors.

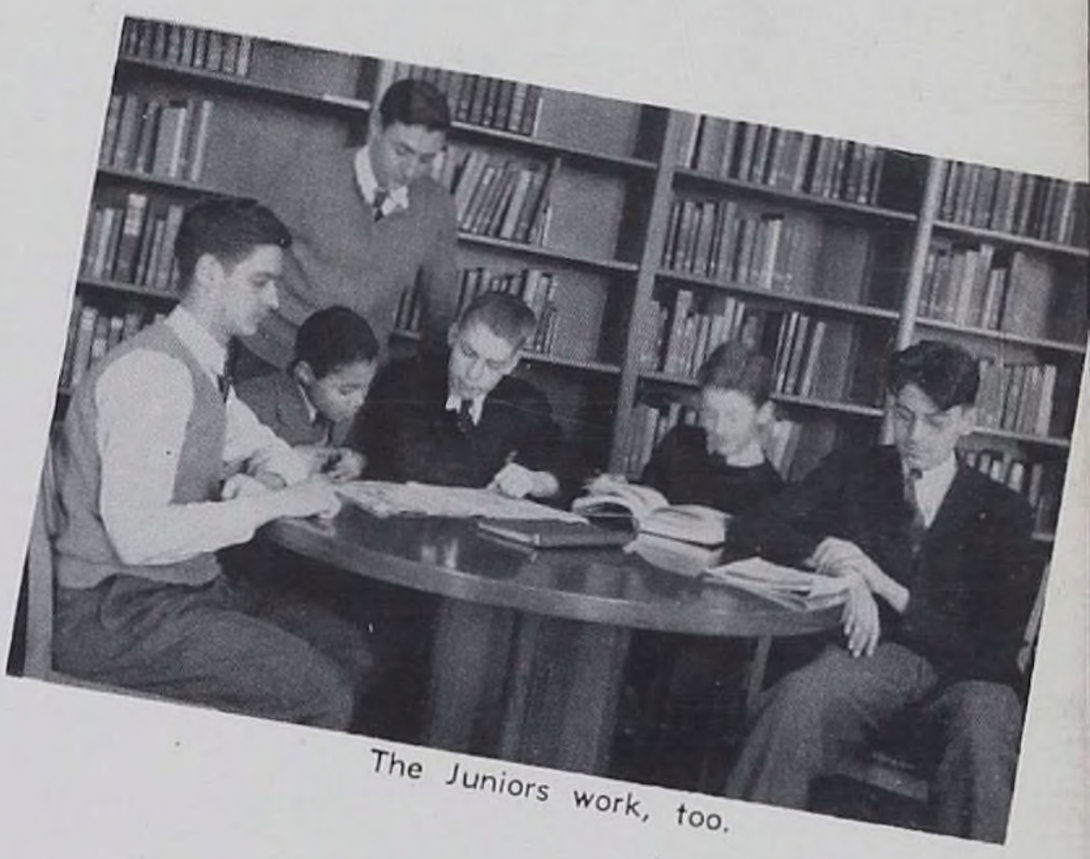
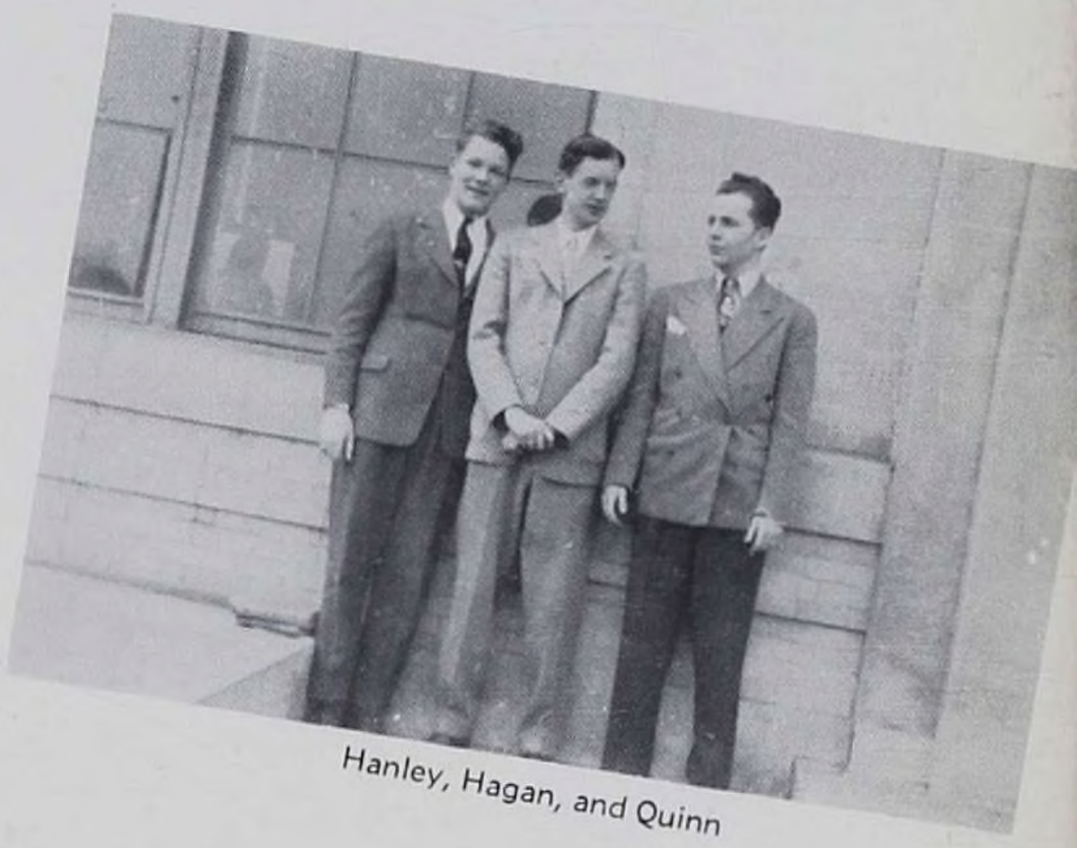
Vice-President John Hagan, Moderator Father Burke, President Gerard Quinn.



The Juniors work, too.



Hanley, Hagan, and Quinn

WITH the coming of Autumn, the Father Higgins Debating Society assembled to commence its second year of interscholastic competition.

At the first meeting the senior branch elected its officers for the year. Gerard Quinn was chosen president, John Hagan vice-president, and James Byrns, now in the Army Air Corps, was elected secretary. Father William Burke retained his position as moderator.

The Debating Society has for its prime purpose an increase of interest in debating among the student of Cardinal Hayes. Besides having regular debates, it is the custom of the organization to conduct numerous panel and open forum discussions. In this manner, all those interested in forensic competition are given the opportunity to experience and enjoy the thrills of debating.

In the interscholastic contests, the Hayes debators engaged some of the most talented teams in New York, meeting such well known schools as La Salle Academy, All Hallows Institute, and Mount St. Michael High School. The season was highlighted by victorious debates with the two last mentioned schools.

The society concluded its season with a prize public debate between the seniors and the juniors.

Father Buckley
Councilors, as

IN many respects, the Students Association resembles our national government. Certainly the spirit is the same—devotion to self-government in so far as that is compatible with good order and the principles of Catholic education.

The executive branch of our government is the responsibility of the S.A. president, guided by the moderator, the Reverend Michael A. Buckley, and assisted by the Student Council, a select group of seniors. These direct traffic in the corridors and on the stairs and enforce all the laws of the school; their main function is, in short, to preserve order throughout the building.

By a popular election in which every student is given the opportunity to vote, a judge is chosen to try those accused of breaking the law and to mete out suitable punishment to those convicted.

Since one of the obligations of any just government is to help the needy and the unfortunate, the Students Association gives financial or other aid whenever such seems necessary. In addition, it offers and seeks every opportunity to increase a number of desirable privileges for its members.

Cardinal Hayes High School considers one of its primary purposes that of developing in every student an appreciative, intelligent love for American principles of democracy. The Students Association plays a leading part in the effort to realize this great ideal.

CLASSICAL CLUB

Fr. McCaffery and Classical Club officers.

A NOTABLE forward step in scholastic endeavor marked the second year of school when Father McCaffery and the professors of the Latin Department organized the Classical Club to further an interest in and appreciation of the glories of ancient Rome. Joseph Fitzpatrick, first president of the club, edited The Classicist, a monthly paper published by Cardinal Hayes devotees of Latin culture. Mr. Fitzpatrick joined the Navy in January, and John O'Brien was chosen to take his place.

INTRODUCING its first year of existence, the members of the Aeronauts Club, whose moderator is Brother Terence C. F. For those who do not have the necessary facilities at home, the society provides a room well equipped with tools and work tables.

Among the chief activities of the club are the planning and testing of model planes built according to scale. Parents who visited the school on one of the visiting days were very favorably impressed by an exhibition sponsored by the Aeronauts Society.

POSTER CLUB

ALL advertisements concerning subjects of general interest are presented to the student body by the Poster Club. In particular, this club accepts assignments from the various societies and organizations throughout the school to bring their undertakings to the attention of the students.

Having come into existence during the first semester of the school year, the Poster Club owes its present success to the guidance of its moderator, the Reverend Father Michael A. Buckley. Not only have its contributions proved extremely beneficial to the school in general but it successfully offers the student with artistic talent an opportunity to exercise that talent in an interesting and practical manner.

SEPTEMBER, 1942, saw the Challenger begin a new year of activity confident in the ability and training of its personnel and backed by the good will of the entire school. Joe Fitzpatrick was our editor and much of the success of this year is due to his unselfish devotion and that of his associates, Brendan O'Grady and Frank Corbin. When Joe left us to serve our country our personal sense of loss was outweighed only by our pride. However the vacancy was filled by Brendan O'Grady, previously News Editor.

Under the watchful guidance of the moderator, the Reverend Joseph Dunn, great steps have been taken in improving the appearance of our newspaper. It is indeed rare to find such a young enterprise already guided by original, effective standards, set up under the most difficult conditions. That these standards will form for quite some time the groundwork of our development is certain.

In March the Challenger won a second award at the Nineteenth Annual Convention of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, fitting tribute to the ability and sacrifices of our staff.

ORCHESTRA

IT is difficult to point to any one achievement of the past two years as the most notable in our short history, but the Cardinal Hayes Symphony Orchestra does call for superlatives. Its success has been truly amazing. Organized shortly after the school opened, it attracted attention by a very creditable performance only two months later. By May of our first year, it was good enough to win the Catholic High School Music Contest, defeating Regis High, previous year's champion, in the closely contested finals.

Phenomenal though its rise may have been, there is nevertheless nothing very mysterious about it. From the beginning, the members of the orchestra have impressed everyone by their zeal, their determination, and their unremitting efforts to attain perfection. And, of course, they have been inspired and encouraged by the genius of Father John W. Ziemak, the dynamic director of the music department. Such exceptional leadership and the long hours of faithful practice made success inevitable.

As the Cardinal's Calendar goes to press, the orchestra is preparing a very ambitious program of classical music for Soiree Musical to be presented in the Brady Auditorium. We are confident that this performance will surpass, if possible their previous efforts. We are confident too that, in the years to come, the orchestra will continue to contribute its full share to the reputation of Cardinal Hayes High School.

Blow, Gabriel, blow!

GLEE CLUB

THE Choral Group, one of the most recent activities of the Music Department, is already a well-organized unit of some fifty students with several outstanding performances to its credit, although it traces its history only to September of 1942. Since that time, its colorful recitals have become an inseparable part of life here at Hayes. This talented company, which might easily have been overshadowed by the more spectacular orchestra and band, has rather tended to complement, but without rivalry, the older organizations.

The Choral Group's singing of Handel's famous "Hallelujah Chorus" at the Christmas festival was magnificent; it won high praise from faculty and students alike. And, as we go to press, these gifted singers have just finished their preparation for the Soirée Musicale, in which they are to present the Choral from "Finlandia," by Sibelius, and the well-known spiritual, "Go down, Moses." That their efforts will be received favorably is already guaranteed by the long, patient hours devoted to faithful practice; we foresee likewise that they will contribute much to the musical programs of the future.

BAND

MAKING their debut at the initial football game of the season, the Hayes band, supervised by the Reverend Father John W. Ziemak, began a very successful year. The young musicians, numbering one hundred and one, displayed their talent, not only in connection with various school activities, but also at numerous patriotic public functions. On one of these occasions, they accompanied Jessica Dragonette, noted soprano; on another they were directed by the Honorable F. H. LaGuardia, Mayor of New York. The highlight of the year was reached on St. Patrick's Day, when the members of the band, smartly dressed in red and gold, led five hundred Cardinal Hayes Air Training Corps cadets up Fifth Avenue in the annual parade.

By constant practice in the music room, the musicians then prepared for the Catholic School Music Festival. As an experiment, the Hayes band progressed from routine march numbers to classical pieces, such as "Intermezzo Sinfonico," by Mascagni, and "Komm, Süsser Tod," by Johann Bach.

At the Soirée Musicale held in the school auditorium during the month of May, the band also had a prominent part. Included in the program were humorous duets and various selections for soloists.

By graduation, the band will lose some of its most talented musicians, notably James Cassidy, Al Schimski, and Robert del Vecchio, but it is hoped that others as talented will be on hand to take their places next year.

HAYES HEP-CATS

THE cats around the joint really dig the importance of know-how and catch some of the stuff the long-hairs and icks have been handing out under the nom-deplume of sym-phony. If you don't believe this, just dig the Sad-Sadies and mud-gutter crew. But even the kids have to let down their back hair, so we come to the gates.

Hatched early this year, the H. H-C. sent the crowd from here to there at the weekly clambakes in the auditorium plus the jiving at the senior hops and the A. T. C. blowout in Feb. The howls have been too, too numerous. Even though it's def that the crew sends solid, the mood-men and the jump-boys are still battling it out. Each wants the combo to play his way. The moodsters, at the senior massacre, couldn't keep giving with the jump-boys. They kept howling for somethin' slow. In the weekly jam-session, however, where the cats just sat and squirmed, howling for murder, the crew had to jump all the way.

The cats that follow Pied Piper H. James say that the Hep-Cats need just a bit to send them out of this world. "Let the horns growl; shake off the mufflers!" they shout. The kids are riding along on the edge of the groove. They just need a little bit more push to send them rolling all the way down Swing Lane to the top.

Practice makes perfect.

OFFICIAL TRANSLATION
SWING BAND

The students of Cardinal Hayes High School understand the importance of acquiring a knowledge and appreciation of the finer, nobler things of life—witness the progress of our symphonic orchestra and our concert and parade band. But we enjoy moments of relaxation, too, even in music. Consequently, the Swing Band.

Organized early this year, the Swing Band has already been received enthusiatically at several assemblies; it also provided music for the last senior dance and the A. T. C. card party in February. Criticism has been loud, emphatic, and varied. Though the superior quality of its renditions is universally admitted, opinions differ regarding its choice of selections. At the senior dance, for instance, the more languid couples felt that the swingsters had perhaps overestimated the endurance of the dancers; they complained of the dearth of slow or "dreamy" numbers. In the auditorium, however, where the listeners had but to clap hands in accompaniment, comment was much more favorable.

At present the more rabid disciples of Harry James insist that the band falls short of perfection by a shade. They suggest that a very subtle increase in volume, now apparently necessary for conformity to standards established by the more advanced artists, can be achieved quite easily by adding a few trumpets (not muted), and possibly two more trombones.

Guided by advice so constructive, supported by such talent, the Swing Band must inevitably sweep on to the musical heights. Long may they swing!

PATRIC

Curtain call. ("The Poor Nut")

UNDER the able direction of the Reverend Thomas A. Dunn, The Patricians have become one of the most successful and popular societies, as well as one which has contributed significantly to the prestige of the school. In addition to the production of several highly acclaimed plays, they were responsible for the majority of the popular weekly assemblies.

The initial production of The Patricians, "Captain Applejack," is still remembered and discussed at Hayes. Inspired by the tremendous popularity of their first attempt, the society went on to receive new laurels when it produced and magnificently staged William Shakespeare's "Richard III." Dick Brennan, '42 will alway be remembered for his villainous portrayal of the hateful Glouster.

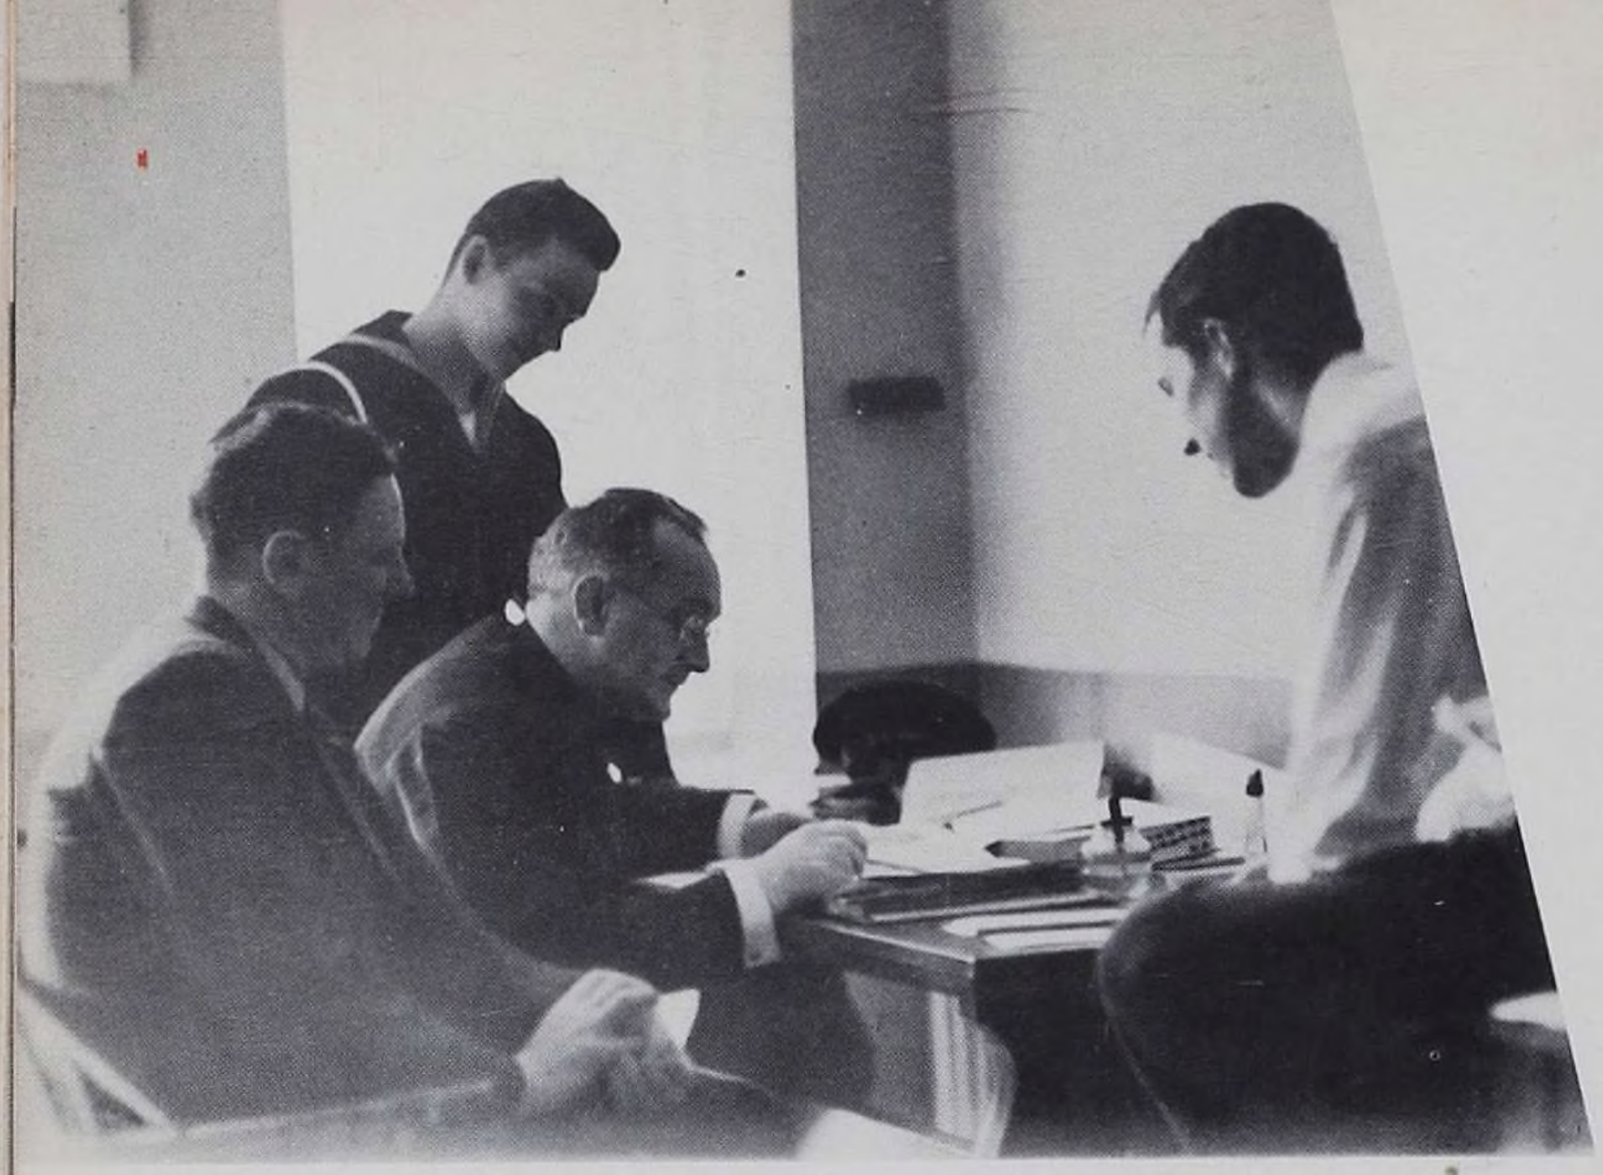
The Patricians started off their 1943 season with a smash hit. This time they selected as their medium "The Poor Nut," a comedy by Elliott Nugent. As a new experiment in Cardinal Hayes dramatics, the female cast was chosen from the lovely ranks of Cathedral Girls' High School. Gerard Quinn, who had given excellent supporting performances in the two previous shows, was cast for the lead in the play, which also starred Walter Hanley, John Hagan and Tom Browne.

As the end of the term approaches, this group is hard at work on what promises to be their most spectacular triumph, "Brother Orchid."

All the scenery, lighting, and other effects which come under the heading of "Stage Technique" are handled by The Patricians themselves with no outside help or direction. The technical staff will lose three of its most efficient and helpful members when Paul Hirschauer, Edward Hauck and Bill Carney are graduated this year. Much credit is to be given to Al Anderson, another of this year's graduates for handling of the business management of The Patricians.

Cardinal's



"Printer and Editors—the last mile."

PLANS for the publication of a yearbook were discussed for the first time in December, 1941, shortly after Cardinal Hayes High School had opened. A group of ambitious Juniors, including the late John Tully, Joseph Fitzpatrick, Alfred Andersen, Brendan O'Grady, and Frank Corbin, conferred with Monsignor Furlong on the project, and then began the long, arduous hours of hard work entailed in the preparation of a school's first annual.

The difficulties were many and great, chief among them the problem of financing the yearbook. Due to the war, the usual advertising and patronage were excluded, and other means of raising the necessary money had to be devised. This resulted in a sustained drive for subscriptions, under the leadership of Frank Corbin, the business manager, and a series of dances sponsored by the Dance Committee, under the supervision of Al Andersen. As the Cardinal's Calendar goes to press, it is expected that the remainder of its debt will be met by the proceeds of a play to be produced at the end of May.

If this first yearbook be successful, the credit must go, not to any individual, but to all those who so loyally sacrificed time and convenience to produce something worthy of our Alma

Special mention should be made, however, of the splendid work done by Joe Fitzpatrick, Literary Editor, Brendan O'Grady, Photography Editor, and Frank Corbin, Business Manager, whose zealous, cooperative efforts inspired the members of their committees to strive for perfect results. At the end of January, Joe Fitzpatrick left school to join the Navy, but his place has been taken, and most efficiently, by Paul LiBassi, a Junior who had worked on the Literary Staff since the beginning of the year.

We must express our thanks also to our first moderator, Father Buckley, and to his successor, Father Harte, who has been in charge of the Cardinal's Calendar since last November. Finally, we are most grateful to Father Thomas Dunn, who so graciously consented to produce the play on which we depended to a great extent for meeting our financial obligations.

The struggle has been a hard one; the obstacles at times seemed insurmountable; the result, we realize, is imperfect in many ways. But we have had the satisfaction of pioneers; we can hope, at least, to have pointed the way to the more glorious achievements of the future.

SODALITY

THE Sodality of the Blessed Virgin was formed under the direction of the Reverend Vincent Lonergan, and has made great progress towards its goal, namely, the enrollment of every student in its ranks. To promote the many objectives of the Sodality, six different committees were formed.

The Blessed Virgin's Committee, with Father Lonergan as moderator, desires to make the Blessed Virgin better known and to spread greater devotion to her throughout the world.

Father John Gordon heads the Labor Committee, which is designed to promote a Catholic treatment of labor problems.

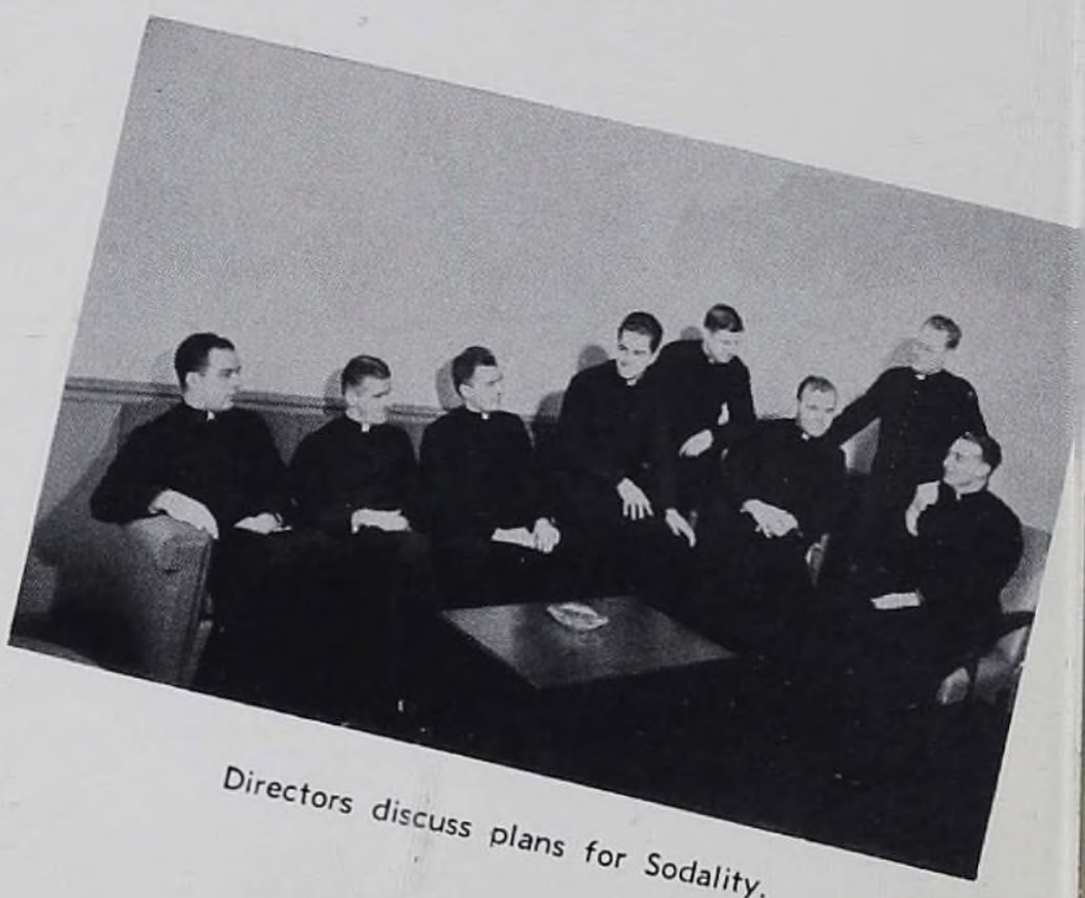
In these times of widespread anti-Catholic and immoral literature, a committee fostering a more detailed knowledge of Catholic problems as they are presented in Catholic literature is more than necessary. The Catholic Truth Committee, directed by Father William Walsh, seeks to satisfy this need.

The Mission Committee led by Father Peter McKay, has as its chief aim to inspire in the students an interest in mission activity and the spread of the Church Militant throughout the world.

To see that the various religious services are carried out, the Eucharistic Committee was formed under the guidance of Father Arthur Nugent.

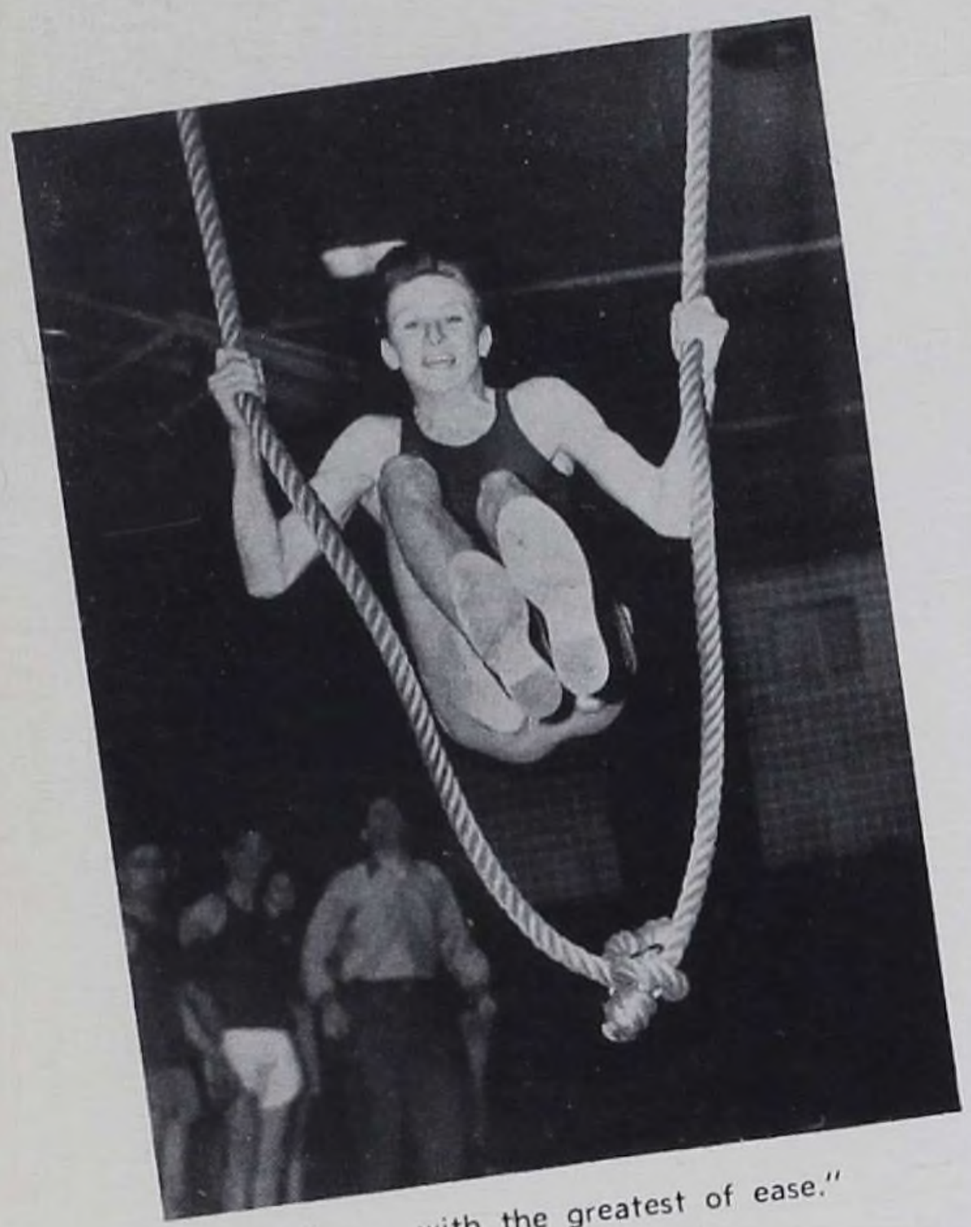
The Sodality sponsors daily Mass for the students and Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament once a week. In addition, sermons were given to the students throughout the course of the year, particularly at the annual retreat held during the second semester.

In all these activities of our Sodality, and in all our undertakings, "To Jesus thru Mary" shall ever be our guiding motto, strengthening us in times of stress and conflict.



Directors discuss plans for Sodality.

COMMANDO TRAINING



". . . with the greatest of ease."

COMMANDO Training, instituted at Hayes by our capable coaching staff under the direction of Coach Bernard Gallagher, offers to each student an opportunity to develop a strong body and an alert mind. This ability to act quickly and efficiently in an emergency has proved invaluable to our fighters at the front.

This pre-induction program, consisting of toughening up exercises and difficult obstacle races, will, we hope, produce candidates well prepared to serve their country to the best of their ability.

ALTHOUGH at first glance it might seem that our first football season was a melancholy one at best, there can be no criticism of the team which, in its initial season, won the respect of some of the strongest high school elevens in the East. Victory must wait upon experience; in the meantime, we have nothing but the highest praise for the fine spirit of the team, the leadership of Father Gallagher, moderator of athletics, and the efforts of our coaches, Mr. O'Rourke, Mr. Krywicki, Mr. Crimmins, and Mr. Cuff. Had any one of these been with the team from the beginning to the end of the season, we know the team's record would have been much better. C'est la guerre! Uncle Sam's need of Messrs. Krywicki and Crimmins is far more pressing than ours.

The victory over Power Memorial, the trip to Malden, and the two games with All Hallows were the highlights of our first football season.

Following a scrimmage with All Hallows, the inexperienced but spirited Red Men sallied forth to their official gridiron debut in a battle with McKee Vocational High School. Despite the loyal support of the student body, however, they failed to overcome the well trained and powerful McKeevers. There were bright spots in the game, times when the Hayesites showed signs of real progress, but experience triumphed over the raw Red Men to the tune of 20-0.

The entire squad next travelled to Boston to engage the Malden Catholic High School team and to suffer their worst defeat of the season—a defeat tempered, however, by the extraordinary hospitality of the Malden townspeople. Missing the moral support of the student body, hampered still by lack of experience, despite their undoubted gameness, the Red Men could not stop the onrushes of one of the country's best high school teams. As a result of this battle, two Hayesites were injured, and Malden piled up twenty-five points against the non-scoring Red Men.

The turning point of the season was reached when the Cardinal and Gold triumphed over the favored eleven from Power Memorial. Following Coach Ward Cuff's instructions to the letter, aided by very exceptional blocking, the Red Men unleashed a fancy running and passing attack which chalked up nineteen points to Power's twelve. The team's defensive work against Power deserves special mention, since it was the important factor which held the Purple and Gold to their twelve points.

Inspired by their initial triumph, the Red Men advanced to meet All Hallows on the gridiron in an outstanding tussle. Practically the entire first three periods of the game consisted in a spirited punting battle between the teams. The climax was reached towards the end of the fourth period when the Hayesites, with but a few moments of play remaining, hit pay dirt with what seemed to be a valid touchdown. But the play was called back on an off-side penalty against Hayes, and, when the final whistle blew a few seconds later, the too confident Red Men had still failed to score and the game ended in a 0-0 tie. There was no doubt, however, that the Hayes men had outplayed their opponents.

The Red Men next demonstrated their talents before a crowd of enthusiastic rooters at Fordham Field against a strong team from St. John's Prep. But enthusiasm was not quite sufficient to break down the stubborn defense of the Brooklynites, a defense that interrupted and disrupted one potential scoring play after another. The team managed to cross the goal line only once, and the final score was Hayes 6, St. John's 19.

For the last game of the season the dogged Red Men once more faced the All Hallows eleven, this time to finish the game, not in a scoreless tie, but defeated. BASKETBALL

IN its first year, the varsity basketball team played no official games, but the scrimmages of that season provided Coach Nat Volpe with veterans like Artie Guy, Jim Fox, and Frank O'Leary, around whom he built the fine '42-'43 team. The goal we set for our varsity was seemingly unattainable—no less than recognition in our first year as one of New York's outstanding clubs—but that goal, we are proud to record, was reached, as a study of the following scores will reveal.

The scores marked with asterisks were official league games in the Bronx-Westchester division of the Catholic High School Athletic Association.

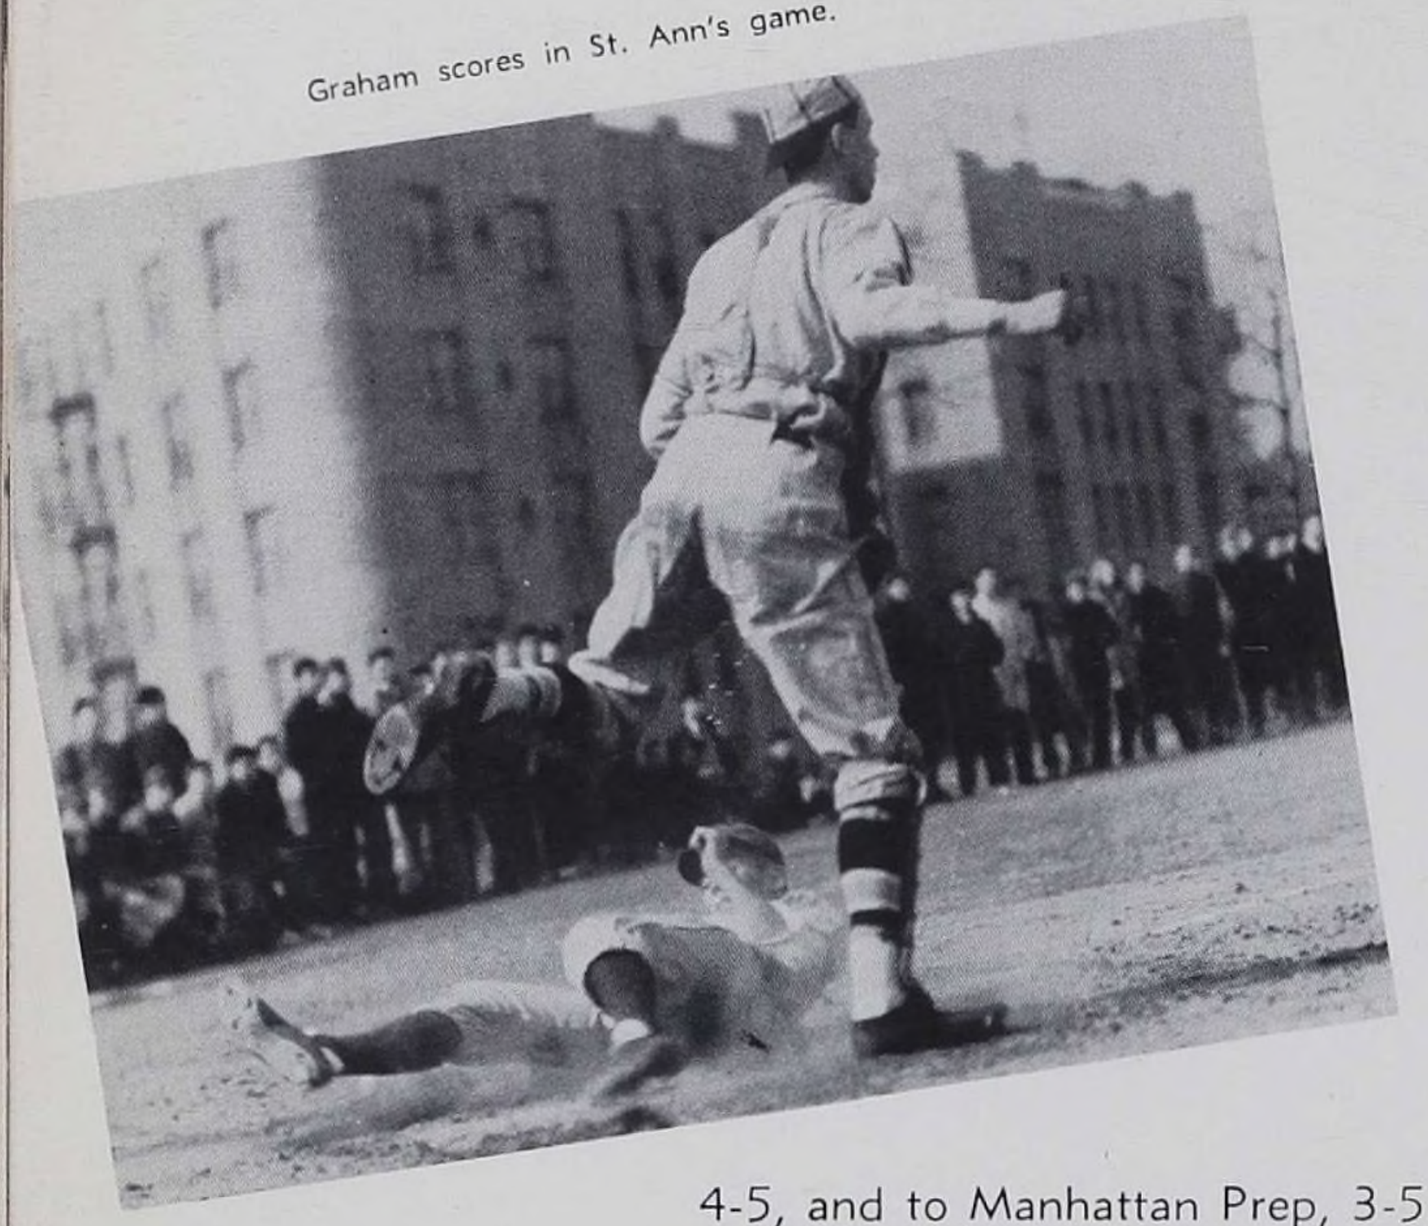
BASEBALL



Graham scores in St. Ann's game.

BASEBALL got off to a running start at Cardinal Hayes High School this year. Long before other high schools began their preparation, Coach Al Groh held his tryouts and organized his team, practising them first in the school courtyard and then on the diamond of Franz Sigel Park. The result was a club so well trained as to offset its newness, as was evidenced strikingly when, wearing the handsome uniform of Hayes, our ball players began the season with victories over De La Salle, 11-6, St. Ann's Academy, 7-2, St. Nicholas of Tolentine, 10-4, and Fordham, 5-2.

But too much prosperity is bad for most people, and the Red Men proved no exception to the general rule. They proceeded to lose three of their next four games, to Stuyvesant, 3-4, to Fordham, 4-5, and to Manhattan Prep, 3-5. Following the game with Stuyvesant, the Hayesites, exasperated because their hitherto perfect record had been marred, trounced Fieldstone Academy by a score of 10-0. So, as the Cardinal's Calendar goes to press, the varsity has won five games and lost three.

The early part of the season would seem therefore to have been moderately successful, at least. It is quite unusual for a new and untried team to begin with a winning streak of four games. Still more remarkable is the fact that all our opponents have scored but twenty-eight runs to the varsity's fifty-three. These figures are explained by Coach Groh's emphasis upon defensive play; also by the superb pitching of Ed Fanning and the excellent fielding of the entire team, especially Jack Graham and Frank Lyons.

From here in, the Indians intend to resume their winning ways. Stuyvesant, Fordham, and Manhattan have very kindly rid them of the temptation to overconfidence, and they are determined to emerge victorious from the games yet to be played. Good luck to them!

TRACK

BERNIE GALLAGHER
Head Coach

THE Cardinal Hayes High School Track Team, although still in its infancy, has made sufficient strides to justify hopes for a well-rounded squad in the very near future.

Competing in the Catholic High School Outdoor Track and Field Championships, Cardinal Hayes returned with its first champion, Herman Russell of third year, who was crowned Catholic High School 100-yard titlist. Russell and Robert Scully also captured medals in the Outdoor Novice Meet.

At the Annual Indoor Track and Field Championships conducted by the Catholic High School Athletic Association at Madison Square Garden, the Hayes team produced a medalist in John Breslin, who finished second in the junior fifty-yard dash. The rest of the team, running for the first time on an indoor track against veteran competition, nevertheless did admirably well.

The coming outdoor meets are expected to show the ability of such members of the team as Roger Potter in the half-mile, Herman Russell in the sprints, John Breslin in the junior division, Robert Purcell and Harold Entress in the field events, and possibly John Von Eschen and John Strubes in the middle distance events.

THANK YOU

WE take this opportunity to thank the following persons and firms for their assistance, without which it would have been impossible for us to publish the Cardinal's Calendar.

Mr. Frank Ball and Mr. Fred Balabio, of the New City Printing Company of Union City, N. J., for their invaluable technical assistance.

Mr. Harry Horton of Apeda Studio, Inc., of 212 West 48th Street, New York City, for helping us with the photography.

The Rev. William P. Burke, for his many contributions to the photography.

The Rt. Rev. Monsignor John J. Casey and Mr. Barry of 452 Madison Avenue, who supplied us with portraits of Cardinal Hayes and Archbishop Spellman.

Mr. Joseph Annin of the Catholic Charities Publicity Bureau for his generous cooperation.

The Kelly-Nason Advertising Agency for their help in locating certain pictures.
